

9.1 My Safe Place

I am creating an inner or outer place that helps me feel safer and calmer.

1. When do I feel safer or calmer?

2. What does my safe place look like?

3. What do I see, hear, and feel there?

4. What can I take from this place into my everyday life?

5. Three things that remind me of safety

1.

2.

3.

6. A calming sentence for myself

I can look for safety and build it one step at a time.

9.2 What Helps Me When Things Feel Hard?

I am identifying small and big supports that help me calm down, feel steadier, and feel safer.

1. What usually helps me calm down?

_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐

Small things that help me in my body

What can I do with my body to calm down and feel steadier?

_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐

Things that help in my thoughts

What can I say or remind myself? Which thoughts make me stronger?

_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐

4. People / places / objects that give me a sense of safety

People: _____

Places: _____

Objects: _____

6. My Support Kit

What can I keep ready for hard moments?

_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐
_____	☐

5. What can I do when things feel hard?

1.	_____
2.	_____
3.	_____
4.	_____
5.	_____

Even one small thing can be an important support.

9.3 I Notice Triggers Gently

I am learning to notice what sometimes activates me,
without blaming myself and without going into hard details.

1. What did I notice that felt hard for me?

2. What happened just before that?

3. What did my body signal to me?

4. What can help me right now?

Ideas that can help me pause and come back:

Deep breathing

Water

Calming music

A short walk

Writing

Kind self-talk

5. Who can I ask for support from?

6. What do I choose not to do right now?

A trigger is a sign that I need support,
not a sign that something is wrong with me.

9.4 Grounding: Here and Now

A grounding practice that helps me return to the here and now when things feel hard.

1. Five things I can see

2. Four things I can hear

3. Three things I can feel

4. Two things I can smell

5. One thing that helps me come back to the here and now

6. What else helps me ground myself?

I am here. I am safer now. I can breathe.

9.5 Who Supports Me?

I am building a support map of safe people who can help me when things feel hard.

1. Who are the people I can turn to?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

2. Which adult can help me?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

3. How will I ask for help?

4. What is important for people to know about me when things feel hard?

5. How can I make contact or ask for help in a hard moment?

6. My Support Map

Asking for help is important and courageous.

9.6 Returning to Routine Gradually

I am building a safe gradual return and a gentle path back to the things that matter to me, at my own pace.

1. What is important for me to return to?

2. My first small step

3. The next step after that

4. Who can help me along the way?

5. What will I do if things feel hard?

6. How will I celebrate small progress?

Returning gradually is real progress.

