

10.1 Communication at Home

Learning to speak at home in a calmer, clearer, and more respectful way.

1. What usually happens for me at home when there is tension?

2. What do I need them to understand about me?

3. What helps me talk without exploding?

5 steps for a good conversation at home

1

1. Listen to the end

Give the other person space to finish without interrupting.

2

2. Pause for a moment

Breathe deeply, count to three.

3

3. Speak clearly

Say what I want in simple words.

4

4. Speak from feelings

Not accusations — talk about what hurts or matters to me.

5

5. Agree on a next step

Check what we understood and agree on one small next step.

4. What can I ask for clearly?

5. When is a good time for a conversation at home?

6. A sentence starter I can use

Even a small conversation can start change at home.

10.2 Boundaries That Respect Everyone

Understanding which boundaries help the home feel calmer, safer, and more respectful.

1. Which boundary is hard for me at home?

Examples of boundaries that are important to pay attention to

Respect for personal space and privacy respect for my room, my personal things, and my privacy.

Time

time for studying, rest, and family.

Phone use

when, how much, and where I use my phone.

Chores and responsibilities dividing tasks and roles at home.

Respect and behavior

speaking respectfully and considering others.

2. Which boundaries are important to me?

3. Which boundaries are important to my parents?

4. What makes a boundary feel fair, and what does not?

5. How can I talk about a boundary without arguing?

6. One agreement we can try this week

A good boundary is not here to control me —
it is here to help us live together better.

10.3 Trust Is Built in Steps

Thinking about how trust at home becomes stronger through small, steady steps.

Steps That Build Trust

Each small step brings us closer.

- 5 Consistency over time — keep showing up, even when it is hard.

- 4 Checking in and updating — ask, tell, and stay in touch.

- 3 Repair in the moment — apologize, acknowledge, calm down, and reconnect.

- 2 Safety check-ins — say when I need help, even with small things.

- 1 Honesty and presence — tell the truth, even when it is not easy.

- 1. When can they trust me more?

- 2. What hurts trust at home?

- 3. What helps build trust again?

- 4. One small step I am willing to take

- 5. What do I need from my parents?

- 6. How will we know trust is getting stronger?

Trust is built slowly — one small step at a time.

10.4 Independence with Responsibility

Checking how I grow independence while also keeping responsibility and cooperation.

1. Where do I want more independence?

2. What am I already doing responsibly?

3. What else am I willing to take responsibility for?

4. Where do I still need help?

5. How can we agree on independence clearly?

Areas of independence: where do I want to grow stronger?

6. My goal for next week

Independence grows well with responsibility.

10.5 Cooperation at Home

Thinking about how each person at home can help make things easier for everyone.

1. Where at home do we need cooperation?

2. What is my role?

3. What do I expect from others?

4. What can I do even without being reminded?

6. One cooperation step for this week

5. How do we solve disagreement without arguing?

 Listen to the other side

 Share how we feel

 Look for one solution together

 Choose what is right for everyone

A little cooperation can make a big difference at home.

10.6 A Calm Family Plan

Building a simple home plan that helps us stay calmer, more attentive, and more cooperative.

1. What is important to remember at home?

2. What is each of us ready to do?

Me:

Parent(s):

3. How can we feel safer and calmer?

Who can help us remember the plan?

Our steps:

1

Pause —
take a short break

2

Listen —
give each person
space to speak

3

Agree — agree on one important thing for us

4

Try — use what we planned

5

Check —
see what worked
and what to improve

5. What will go on the weekly card?

6. How will we celebrate a small success?

A simple and clear plan can strengthen the home.
