

What Is the Evidence?

Sometimes a thought can feel like a fact.
Let's pause and check what really supports it —
and what supports it less.

2. What is my thought?

Mark the thought that came up first.

I won't succeed

They think something bad about me

Something is wrong
with me

This will end badly

Other

My thought:

1. What happened?

Mark the place or situation that triggered me.

At school

☐

At home

☐

With friends

☐

In my body
or sleep

☐

Online / phone

☐

Something else

☐

In a short sentence:

3. What is the evidence for?

What supports the thought feeling true?

Example

- They didn't answer my message
- I made a mistake on the test

The supporting evidence:

4. What is the evidence against?

What else is important to remember?

Example

- Sometimes people are busy
- I have succeeded many times before

The evidence that does not support it:

5. So what do I understand now?

Choose a slightly more accurate conclusion.

I can calm down
for a moment

I need to check more

The thought is not telling the whole story

There is also evidence against

My conclusion:

Thought Reminder

Evidence is what can be checked.
When I look at both for and against,
the picture becomes more accurate.
